Southeastern Symposium on Mental Health

Reducing Mental Health Disparities Through Sustaining and Strengthening Healthy Communities: Increasing Knowledge through Research, Education and Practice

Working Together ... To Eliminate Stigma and Improve Lives!

Mental Health and Illness in the United States

- According to National Institute of Mental Health, 1 in 5 American adults or approximately 43.8 million people, or 15.5% experience mental illness in a given year.
- One in 25 or approximately 13.6 million American adults live with a serious mental illness such as schizophrenia, major depression or bipolar disorder.
- Approximately 2.4 million American adults live with schizophrenia and another 6.1 million adults live with bipolar disorder.
- Approximately 18.1 percent of American adults or 42 million people live with anxiety disorders, such as panic disorder, obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD), post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), generalized anxiety disorder and phobias. In addition, 8.4 million adults have co-occurring mental health and addiction disorders.
- Among the 20.2 million adults in the U.S. who experienced a substance use disorder, 50.5%—10.2 million adults—had a co-occurring mental illness.
- Approximately 60 percent of adults with a mental illness did not receive mental health services. African American and Hispanic Americans use mental health services at about one-half the rate of whites in the past year and Asian Americans at about one-third the rate of whites.

The Impact of Mental Illness in the United States – Costs America $193.2 billion in lost earnings per year

- Individuals living with serious mental illness face an increased risk of having chronic medical conditions. Adults living with serious mental illness die on average 25 years earlier than other Americans, largely due to treatable medical conditions.
- Suicide is the tenth leading cause of death in the U.S. (more common than homicide) and the third leading cause of death for ages 15 to 24 years. More than 90 percent of those who die by suicide had one or more mental disorders.
- Although military members comprise less than 1 percent of the U.S. population, veterans represent 20 percent of suicides nationally. Each day, about 23 veterans die from suicide.

Southeastern Symposium on Mental Health

Reducing Mental Health Disparities Through Sustaining and Strengthening Healthy Communities: Increasing Knowledge through Research, Education and Practice

Event Overview

The Southeastern Symposium on Mental Health provides an opportunity for stakeholders to collaborate across disciplines and share research findings utilizing evidence-based outcomes in order to improve patient-centered care. Our goal is to promote awareness about mental health and substance use issues, reduce stigma and discrimination, improve equity for mental health and substance use comparable to other health care, and inform public policy.

This event will provide a regional and national platform for the significant challenges and common struggles associated with living with mental illness.

The Southeastern Symposium on Mental Health will advance the welfare of our communities through improving access to mental health care, knowledge, and education. We are excited about the diversity of our program and the culmination of our collaborative efforts. We look forward to your participation in this annual event.

Our Mission

- Develop synergistic relationships among stakeholders, caregivers, academics, healthcare professionals, and community partners.
- Foster dialogue and promote awareness of current trends in mental health and substance use treatment, practice and research to achieve equity for mental health and substance use treatment outcomes.
- Engage physicians and allied health professionals in all medical specialties to expand their knowledge and participation in the care of those with mental illness and substance use disorder.
- Encourage mental health advocacy and work towards the eradication of stigma and discrimination surrounding mental illness and substance use treatment.
- Improve access and treatment of mental health care and substance use treatment through dissemination of information and resources that strive to achieve equity for mental health care comparable to other health care.
